True Stories of Empowerment and Making a Difference in This World Full of Challenges

The Florida Everglades: 65,000 hectares of mythical beauty, breath taking nature and unique wildlife. Since the Europeans first 'discovered' America they have tried to put the Everglades to 'better use' - turn them into farms, roads, towns and cities.

The Everglades came close to annihilation, but then we stopped destroying them. Why? Nexus reveals how truth is stranger than fiction and how a small group of people through a simple choice, can save an entire ecosystem.

This is an extraordinary evening of storytelling. You will journey with colourful true-life characters through the swamps and the clouds of mosquitos, losing yourself in an evening of heart lifting and empowering inspiration, of kindled compassion, of laughter and tears.

'Nexus' is an antidote to despair, ... a clear, compelling and deeply human story of our relationship with the natural world' [Michael Harvey]

The Storyteller : Carl Gough fom Wales

Carl has been telling stories since 2005, with a diverse career and life experience before that, which came knocking on his door during Covid. He realised he needed to revive the belief and optimism of his younger self. Reconnecting to what matters has changed Carl as a human being and particularly as a storyteller.
